

Landis Wade Short Bio

Landis Wade writes light-hearted legal thrillers, mysteries, and essays. He is a recovering trial lawyer (after 35 years of law practice) and founder of Charlotte Readers Podcast (where he has conducted more than 500 author interviews), whose novella The Christmas Redemption won the Holiday category of the 12th Annual National Indie Excellence Awards and whose novel Deadly Declarations won ten awards, including Winner in the 2022 American Fiction Awards in the Cozy Mystery category.

In 2023, with the help of his podcast co-hosts, he published The Write Quotes series, an eight-book collection that feature inspirational and practical author quotes about writing and the writing life, from 500+ interviews with authors in more than 33 states and four countries.

Landis also co-wrote and published a novella in November 2023 with podcast co-host Sarah Archer titled Death by Podcasting, a comedic mystery about the dangers of podcasting with author guests.

His short work has been featured in Writersdigest.com, The Charlotte Observer, Flying South, and in several anthologies, and his short story, The Deliberation, won the 2016 North Carolina Bar short story contest. He is a past board member of Charlotte Writers Club and an active participant in the writing and podcasting communities. To learn more about Landis, his books, and the podcast, click here.
